Three wills to let Thomas take the heat for that

There was a moment of breathless silence, and then the room was filled again. Of course, the noise from the room below was quite noticeable. Phyllis, however, was not perturbed. She simply continued her reading, undisturbed by the commotion above her. When she finally turned to face the door, she found herself greeted by the warm embrace of Thomas, who had just entered. He appeared to be in a state of deep thought, and his eyes were fixed on Phyllis with a mixture of curiosity and concern.

Phyllis smiled warmly at him, her eyes sparkling with excitement. "I'm so glad you're here," she said, her voice low and melodious. "I've been waiting for you." Thomas returned her smile, his eyes meeting hers in a silent conversation. He seemed to understand the depth of her feelings, and his heart was touched by her kindness.

"We need to talk," he said, his voice steady and calm. "There's something I need to tell you." Phyllis nodded, her expression serious. "I'm listening," she said, her eyes never leaving his. "Tell me everything." Thomas took a deep breath, his mind racing with thoughts and concerns. "We need to leave," he said, his voice firm. "I'm not ready to face the world just yet." Phyllis looked at him with a look of surprise, her eyes wide. "But where will you go?"

"I don't know," he replied, his voice low. "But I need to be somewhere where I can think. Somewhere where I can be with you."

Phyllis took his hand, her fingers intertwining with his. "I understand," she said, her voice gentle. "But you can't stay here. We need to make a plan."

"I know," he said, his voice soft. "But I need time to think."

Phyllis nodded, her eyes never leaving his. "Of course," she said, her voice calm. "I'll be here when you're ready."

"I love you," he said, his voice filled with emotion. "More than you know."

Phyllis smiled, her eyes shining with happiness. "I love you too," she said, her voice soft. "I'll always be here for you."

And with those words, they held each other tight, their hearts beating in unison. They knew that whatever the future held, they would face it together, hand in hand.
I went over to Thomas, and I saw that he was very much interested in something on the ground in front of him. He pointed to it, and then turned to me, saying:

"What is it, Thomas?" I asked.

"I don't know, but it's interesting. It's a very old piece of pottery."

I examined it closely. It was indeed an ancient piece, with patterns that were quite intricate. I commented:

"This is remarkable. Who could have made such a piece?"

"I don't know," he replied. "But it's certainly old."

We decided to explore further, and we found another similar piece nearby. We were both excited by the discovery. We took some pictures and made a note of the location, so we could come back later to study it more thoroughly.

As we left, Thomas turned to me and said:

"I hope we can find more of these."

I agreed, and we continued on our way, with the excitement of our discovery still lingering in the air.
